Paul Chantler, Sim Harris : Local Radio Journalism (Media Manuals) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Local Radio Journalism (Media Manuals):

If you are looking for the skills to gain success in local radio journalism, this practical guide will show you how. Now completely updated to include all the latest advances in technology and changes of thinking in interviewing and programming, this continues to be the ideal starter text for beginners to radio journalism. Local Radio Journalism concentrates on showing how to go about the different aspects of local radio journalism - from how to build and establish a small newsroom on a budget, planning and developing news stories and preparing news bulletins and ensuring their accuracy. It explains what studio equipment and interviewing techniques to use, giving guidance on running the newsdesk, how to cope in a crisis, and how to keep on the right side of the law.

of the previous edition: 'In a nutshell, a good start for those wishing to begin a career on radio journalism and for journalists wishing to transfer from the written word to the spoken word.' The Broadcaster newsletter 'With the latest advances in technology and changes of thinking in interviewing and programming, this is the ideal starter for beginners to radio journalism. Useful for students on journalism courses, practising journalists wishing to extend their skills, personnel on hospital or other small radio stations.' Voice of the Listener Viewer Newsletter From the Publisher If you are looking for the skills to gain success in local radio journalism, this practical guide will show you how.
