Looks like it is for kids. It is more for adults. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Educational and entertaining By UncleScrogeGot this CD for our three cats, they seem to enjoy it when we put in on for them! In addition, it's very educational too! Good choice.

Are birds monogamous? Why do kookaburras laugh? Is the ivory-billed woodpecker really extinct? These fascinating stories feature the delightful and exotic sounds of birds, plus astute and informative commentary from bird lovers, bird experts, and sometimes birds themselves. Learn how naturalist F. Schuyler Matthews translated bird song into musical notes. Discover how the city of Chicago has drawn purple martins back to Lake Michigan, their historic habitat. Find out everything you want to know about the lyrebird's glorious tail. If you're a bird lover, this is for you. The NPR Sound Treks series features outstanding audio documentaries, stories, and commentary from the NPR archives. Each volume features sounds from nature, insights from experts and others who love the outdoor experience (naturalists, zoologists, biologists, adventurers, even a cowgirl), and vivid storytelling that captures the excitement of the wilderness.

About the AuthorNational Public Radio (NPR) is an American privately and publicly funded non-profit membership media organization that produces and distributes news and cultural programming. From AudioFileWing your way from New York City to Chicago to Guatemala with this collection from National Public Radio. Listeners will hear bird-related news stories and essays--and the birds themselves: cardinals, red-winged blackbirds, purple martins, bare-throated tiger herons, and more. Host Jon Hamilton's introductions make each story feel connected to the next, and all are presented warmly and professionally by the various reporters and commentators. Field-recorded soundscapes including birdcalls and nature sounds add welcome atmosphere to many of the pieces. The bite-sized stories are the perfect way to get a little birdsong into your day, even if you're stuck on the highway or in the concrete jungle. J.M.D. AudioFile 2010, Portland, Maine
